Art Unit: 2836

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

The factual inquiries set forth in Graham v. John Deere Co., 383 U.S. 1, 148 USPQ 459 (1966), that are applied for establishing a background for determining obviousness under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) are summarized as follows:

1. Determining the scope and contents of the prior art.
2. Ascertaining the differences between the prior art and the claims at issue.
3. Resolving the level of ordinary skill in the pertinent art.
4. Considering objective evidence present in the application indicating obviousness or nonobviousness.

This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

Claim 1 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Shiga.

Shiga teaches a semiconductor device that comprises an internal circuit 7 and is said have microwave signal transmission lines connected between the external terminals 3,4 and the internal circuit 7. The Shiga protection circuit includes a microstrip line having a length equal to a quarter wavelength at the frequency of the signal to be amplified and a diode having one terminal connected to the microstrip line and the other terminal grounded. The diode serves as a surge conducting element, but the teachings of Shiga differ from the claim by not having the diode directly connected to the signal line to implement a protective function.

It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to use the teachings of Shiga to meet the claim because variations in the connection arrangement of frequency responsive protective and/or filtering elements are minor design variations well within the abilities of persons of ordinary skill in the art, with the exception being cases where an arrangement produces an unexpected result or is counterintuitive to a person of ordinary skill.

Claims 2-16 objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

The following is a statement of reasons for the indication of allowable subject matter: The limitations of claims 2-16 in combination with the limitations of claim 1 are not taught or fairly suggested by the prior art of record.
